

Last Mile Delivery And Logistics Solutions

NEWS RELEASE

In The News: Close To A Highway Can Still Be Too Far, 3PD Exec Writes In Area Development Article

September 8, 2009
For Immediate Release

ATLANTA, Georgia — Highway access is a key site selection factor — if not THE site selection factor — for many U.S. businesses looking to relocate. But that alone won't get your company on the road to logistics efficiency cautions 3PD's Will O'Shea, in his recent article "Highway Access 101."

"It has to be about more than just mere proximity," said O'Shea, whose article can be found in Area Development's Aug./Sept. 2009 issue. "Among other things, it has to be about choosing good-quality roadways... understanding the rules of the road in the areas you're considering... and your own due diligence, because maps, local organizations and chambers of commerce can tell you only so much about the true ebb and flow of an area's traffic."

To read the full article — and get a look at several interesting highway statistics — go to <http://www.areadevelopment.com/logisticsInfrastructure/august09/Highway-Access-site-selection-factor002.shtml> or log onto the publication's web site at www.areadevelopment.com.